

Black Habit is a wonderful recipe created by the Benedictine Brewery of the Mount Angel Abbey.

We normally don't produce contract brews at Upright, but we saw eye to eye with the abbey team – like us, they're not hung up on categories or exacting styles, but instead are creating their own, something we appreciate. This bottling represents a small portion of the Black Habit that was matured in a former wine cask, yielding an aroma rich with oak and spice, followed by layered and well structured malt flavors. The beer finishes quite dry with lingering wine grape notes. The abbey was kind enough to let us release a few cases from the tasting room, so please observe the one bottle limit.
